In Memoriam

Helen Self 1937 - 2023

A very special place in our history is held for Helen’s dedication and huge contribution to the women’s movement. She was a committed and passionate internationalist, scholar, and activist.

Helen Self was born in 1937 and passed away in 2023. She was a tireless advocate for women’s rights and gender equality. Helen was a regular contributor to the IAW Newsletter and was also a significant figure in the International Alliance of Women (IAW).

Helen Self was an English-speaking internationalist and scholar who served on the IAW Board for ten years. She was a dedicated member of the IAW and made significant contributions to the organization.

Helen Self was a scholar who was well-versed in different cultures and languages. She was also an internationalist who worked tirelessly to promote gender equality and women's rights around the world.

Helen Self's dedication to the women's movement was evident in her work as a member of the IAW Board for ten years. She was also a committed editor of the IAW Newsletter and was known for her tireless efforts to promote women's rights and gender equality.

Helen Self was a well-respected internationalist and scholar who was known for her commitment to the women's movement. She made significant contributions to the IAW and was a dedicated member of the organization.

In her memory, we honor her legacy and the impact she made on the women's movement.